WHAT DOES ARPA HAVE TO DO WITH THE PRICE OF EGGS?

It's not as strange as it sounds

When the American Rescue Plan Act was passed, the U.S. Department of Treasury deliberately left the guidelines around Allowable Costs broad to let each state, county, and city spend funds according to their unique needs.

In addition to creating new funding streams, ARPA provides money to support numerous existing programs and initiatives dating all the way back to 1934!

Some of the Acts on the list--and the Allowable Uses associated with them--might surprise you. For example, did you know that the Department of Agriculture was allotted $4 billion to provide grants and loans that can be used to:

- purchase and distribute agricultural commodities (including fresh produce, dairy, seafood, eggs, and meat) to individuals in need, including through delivery to nonprofit organizations and through restaurants,
- make grants and loans for small or midsize food processors or distributors, seafood processing facilities and processing vessels, farmers markets, producers, or other organizations.

Another surprising example comes from the U.S. Department of Education, which recently clarified that ESSER and GEER funds may be used to:

- retain or hire additional bus drivers in response to the nationwide shortage,
- provide transportation for students to and from school, including but not limited to services provided directly by the school district (such as buses); the cost of public transportation services (e.g., bus or subway fare); taxis, rideshare apps, or other driving services,
- provide transportation for students participating in after-school learning and enrichment activities provided by the LEA,
- compensate parents or guardians for transporting their students to and from school if an LEA is experiencing challenges hiring and/or retaining bus drivers.

Finally, the National Endowment for the Arts was granted funding for both direct grantmaking and subgrants to local arts agencies to support theater operations, artists, chamber music, museums, dance companies, technical crews, and more.

Below, you'll find a complete list of the other Acts referenced in the American Rescue Plan Act. Look it over; you might be surprised to learn what made the list (like the Egg Products Inspection Act) and find some new and unexpected ways to put your agency's ARPA funds to work.
